

Guidelines for the public health management of pertussis

SHPN guide to using the external guidance

Version	1.0
Published	21 June 2023 (Latest release)
Type	Guidance
Author	Public Health Scotland
Topics	Conditions and diseases Health protection

Contents

Overview

- Intended audience
 - What the guidance covers
 - Guide for use in Scotland
 - View the external guidance
-

Overview

This Scottish Health Protection Network (SHPN) guide should be used alongside the external guidance that it relates to.

This guide covers the UKHSA 'Guidelines for the public health management of pertussis'.

This external guidance has been approved for use in Scotland by the SHPN Guidance Group (SHPN-GG).

Intended audience

This guidance is for health protection professionals only.

Other people who require advice should contact their local health protection team.

What the guidance covers

This guidance covers the investigation and management of suspected cases of pertussis and their close contacts.

Guide for use in Scotland

The guidance is acceptable for use in Scotland in its current form.

View the external guidance

This external guidance should be used together with the guide for use in Scotland provided on these pages.

View pertussis guidelines

Last updated: 21 March 2024

Version history

21 June 2023 - Version 1.0

- Previously published on the Health Protection Scotland website on 3 May 2018.
- This is the first publication on the Public Health Scotland website in a new HTML format.
- There have been no changes to the recommendations.

Follow us

Twitter

Instagram

LinkedIn

© Public Health Scotland

OGI All content is available under the Open Government Licence v3.0, except where stated otherwise.